An Overview

Newt Gingrich is a highly powered, energetic person, determined, able to act independently, and with a great and conscious capacity to express himself and get things done. Truly dedicated to the collective to a degree of disregarding the individual, he's destined to be a leader and knows that. He is a man of ideas and he can express them and formalize them logically. He will pursue whatever he sets his mind on. He is well aware of the cyclical nature of things and progress is his main aim. He's a good listener, with a great capacity to sense the ailments of others. As somebody who doesn't feel good about himself, he will do whatever he thinks will make him feel better, sometimes foolish things. Spontaneity is one of those temptations, but is not his pair of shoes and could prove disastrous.

The Skills of Human Design Analysis

The individual Rave chart is the core of any analysis based on the Human Design System. Above is the design of Newt Gingrich with an example of an overview on the most basic level. Human Design is not judgmental or interpretative. This overview is not slanted to endorse or reject him, but rather, it states what is obvious to the trained eye by looking at the chart without prejudice. Like everyone else, Newt is living his life of No Choice. He is who he is. Much more can be said about him in a complete reading, but this overview shows how informative even the very first layer of the system is.

Human Design is logical, empirical and learnable. It gives you a language for describing, understanding, knowing, accepting yourself and anyone else. It is a remarkable tool for seeing the dynamics and mechanics operating in life. Once you know the language and have some experience with it, looking at a design is at once very simple and very comprehensive.

Human Design has many applications, personally and professionally. It makes a difference to really know who you are, what it is you have to live. It is also enormously beneficial to understand the dynamics of relationships. With the skills of Human Design analysis, you can read any Rave chart; famous people, family members, co-workers, friends, clients. The more you use it, the more you'll recognize how powerful it is.

If you wonder how an overview as above is done and are interested in learning Human Design analysis, now is the time to do it. There are three consecutive courses scheduled this coming October, leading into the depth of Human Design analysis. See page 4. These courses can change the way you view yourself fundamentally. You will gain a tool to help you be conscious in a very real sense. By using Human Design in your daily life, you can discover what it means to truly love yourself, as you are, in your entirety.

Health and Human Design

3. The Significance of Limitation

Channel 60-3, Mutation, is the energy format of the Knowing circuit. This is an individual circuit, as opposed to the Understanding and Sensing circuits which are collective. It describes in detail the mechanics of health and being healthy. Health is always individual, involves all three centers of awareness (none of the other circuits does that) and functions only in the here and now: you can be healthy only here and now (hexagram 20, Contemplation). The energy for it is impulsive and mutative (60-3) and the base of it is gate 60, Limitation.

Limitation in this context is synonymous with health. Because health is always individual, the limitation is individual: everybody needs to find their own healthy measure in life. It can change suddenly, from one second to the next, mutating, and therefore needs constant attention (gate 20, Contemplation).

The body's energy reserves for the 60-3 are carbohydrates. Impulse needs energy available at the spur of a moment which can be provided by sugars. Fats and proteins take too long to get mobilized. Each individual needs to find their own correct dose of sugar. For people with definitions in the Knowing circuit this is relatively easy: they have a lifetime of experience with this kind of energy and are able to judge their individual consumption and requirement.

But it is more difficult for people who have only potentials in the Knowing circuit: constantly changing definitions caused by transits or contacts with other people that can hardly be planned for and can cause impairing fluctuations of the body's sugar management, with symptoms like dry mucus membranes, or sudden lack of concentration, things that would not happen to a person alone. These people can improve their situation by eating many small meals during a day, adding snacks of fruit or cakes, to make sure that the body has a constant energy reserve on which to fall back in times of sudden need.

The design of a single cell

This is particularly important for children: if a child has an emphasis in the Knowing circuit, sugar is of vital importance. As the craving can be impulsive (60-3), the child must learn to recognize and deal with it, to find his own individual healthy balance.

Gate 3 is the receptor of the single cell, as each cell's design consists of channel 15-5, Rhythm, and gate 3 (see illustration). This illustrates the fact that Limitation (gate 60) is synonymous with health: It's the energy for each single cell of the body and those are obviously crucial for the difference between illness and health. But because it's individual energy, there's no universally valid prescription. No choice.

try if I'm in the mood." Remember, the Solar Plexus is rarely aware. The mood is a swing from hope to pain.

On May 15, Saturn transited into 36, Darkening of the Light, gate of crisis. July 5, Saturn's direct motion came to an end (stationary) in 36.3, Transition, "the point at which decline (crisis) has exhausted its power," and began its retrograde motion returning to gate 22 August 28. For the rest of 1995 and until February 1996, Saturn will be conditioning our moods and appetites and potentially awakening our spirit.

"It is a wonder and a privilege to understand the mechanics of being. I know. And that awareness must include the perspective of the totality. I know that the true awakening can only make sense in the context of the totality. The truth must be simple, pure. I share purely, the truth of Human Design, that it must be available to anyone and everyone. I know that when the totality surrenders to No Choice, only then will we be one with whatever created us and truly awake. Through Human Design I am a revolutionary instrument of de-conditioning. My banner is 'Self-Knowledge to Humanity.'"
